Administrative history / Biographical sketch

Note

The Kanawa Canoe museum was located in Haliburton, Ontario. The director and founder was Professor Kirk Wipper of the University of Toronto. The Canadian Canoe Museum was taken over by a Board of Directors centered at Trent University beginning in 1990. This steering committee was set up in 1980 to investigate "the feasibility of establishing the Kanawa International Museum at Trent". A management consultant was subsequently hired to advise on the location and future development of Kanawa. Kanawa is now known as the Canadian Canoe Museum.

Custodial history

This fonds was donated by Professor John Marsh with later additional files from Alf Cole August, 1987. More additions were forwarded by Professor Bruce Hodgins from Professor Fred Helleiner in 1993, and, Jean Cole brought more additions. February, 1994.

Scope and content

This fonds consists of the records of the Trent-Kanawa Canoe Museum Committee (the Presidential Advisory Committee to Investigate the Feasibility of Establishing the Kanawa International Museum at Trent University). Records include meeting minutes, correspondence, proposals, plans, and reports.
